Twenty-second—Even the Dutch settlers of South Africa being horrified at this sentence, and pouring by hundreds into Pretoria, and against it, Mr. Kruger graciously took the men because such scruples, but announced that his religious scruples forbade that he should commute the sentences of the prisoners, because such fines would be "the fines, because such reverence for his dear Lord Jesus forbade that he should be less scrupulous than the Jews." Jerusalem.

Twenty-third.—The Boers therefore informed the prisoners that they could not be released on the payment of any fines. If the prisoners would, of their own accord, pay the fines, they would receive sums varying from £5.00 to $100.00

Twenty-fourth—Both the British and the American governments have at that time refused to intervene in these proceedings this offer.

The American citizens all made heavy contributions to "charity." John Hays Hambley paying $100,000. No such penalties were exacted from the citizens of the United States, nor during the last century in any other civilized country.

Charities for Kruger.

Twenty-fifth—These "charitable contributions," amounting to about $1,000,000 in all, are today paid over to His Highness Paul Kruger or his son-in-law. It is needless to Twenty-six—Both the British and the American governments quickly submitted memoranda to the British Foreign Office for their assistance. The British Foreign Office described both Englishmen as "dogs, who, if they were to be sent to America, would lick his boots." In this case, the British government asserted that these acts had occurred only once since the January raid of December, 1856. In fact, there is not one word of truth, except that the Outlanders were certainly very numerous, many more were committed and perpetrated, and many more were committed and perpetrated.

tion was ever thought of. In fact, the condition of the Outlanders has been distinctly better since the Jameson raid occurred. Although the raiders were defeated and captured, Mr. Rhodes is so confident that the Outlanders would never fight as he had been before. After the raid, and not before, he permitted Johannesburg to have some kind of a local government, insisting, of course, that this government should be absolutely under the control of his own creatures. Still, it was much better than had a local government of his own nomination than to have none at all.

Father McGee to provide the latter with a church. For many years Father McGee was associated with the late Father Waterloo,
 and he is regarded as the natural successor
 of the popular pastor of St. Patrick's church. His friends will be very glad to see him in his new position.
